

COMIC CRAFT

Project Testing Phase

The Project Testing Phase checks the comic for errors and improvements before final submission. The team reviews the story, dialogue, spelling, panel order, speech bubbles, character consistency, image quality and page layout. Test readers may also view the comic and provide useful feedback about clarity and readability. Any problems found during testing are corrected. This phase helps ensure that the final comic is clear, accurate, attractive and easy for the audience to understand.